

Interactive comment on “The significance of vertical moisture diffusion on drifting Snow sublimation near snow surface” by Ning Huang and Guanglei Shi

H. Li

lihongyi@lzb.ac.cn

Received and published: 21 August 2017

Prof. Huang and his team made a very interesting job in analyzing drifting snow sublimation. Their results indicate that blowing snow sublimation is 3-4 orders of magnitude higher than at 10m. It is amazing and very useful, because this phenomenon has not been involved in any land surface model, as I know. I believe this job can fill the gap. One minor opinion: more explanation in figure captions may be better for readers.

Interactive comment on The Cryosphere Discuss., https://doi.org/10.5194/tc-2017-116, 2017.

Printer-friendly version

Discussion paper

