I would like to thank both reviewers for taking the time to provide two well-informed reviews. It is clear that they are generally supportive of publication, subject to some important revisions. I share their concerns about the brevity of the manuscript and would ask the authors to consider adding greater detail in terms of both the context and the results and discussion (if they decide to undertake revisions). As noted by one of the reviewers, this would also be facilitated by a more orthodox structure to the manuscript.
